

The Spectrum of Prevention

Strengthening Individual Knowledge and Skills Enhancing an individual's capability of preventing injury or crime	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Training for teens to support healthy dating • Home visitations by public health nurses
Promoting community education Reaching groups of people with information and resources to promote health and safety	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The Family Violence Prevention Fund's Coaching Boys into Men campaign promotes positive examples of male behavior such as respect • The Five in Six Project, based in Cape Town, South Africa, uses a social norming approach to convey to men that five in six men are not violent with their partners, questioning the assumption that "everyone is violent".
Educating providers Informing providers who will transmit skills and knowledge to others.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Training journalists to frame coverage of domestic violence as a preventable problem • Take it to the Village: Prevention training for native and non-native health care practitioners in isolated Alaskan villages.
Fostering coalitions and networks Bringing together groups and individuals for broader goals and greater impact	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • CDC's Delta Program (Domestic Violence Prevention Enhancement and Leadership Through Alliances) encourages partnerships and collaborations including non-traditional partners, e.g., the faith community, civic and men's organizations, the media and business efforts to address primary prevention. • Transforming Communities' Faith in Violence Free Families project brings together faith leaders and domestic violence agencies to increase the capacity of faith communities to respond to and prevent domestic violence.
Changing organizational practices Adopting regulations and norms to improve health and safety and creating new models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Men's civic and athletic organizations develop positions, programs and resources to support and engage men in ending violence against women. • Businesses develop and enforce strong anti-harassment and anti-violence policies that explicitly address domestic violence.
Influencing policy and legislation Developing strategies to change laws and policies to influence outcomes in health, education and justice	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Cambridge, Massachusetts passed a Domestic Violence-Free Zone, representing a citywide commitment to prevent domestic violence and resulting in an embedding of domestic violence prevention language and policy into all areas of city business. • The US Violence Against Women Act raised awareness about the problem of violence against women and brought federal resources to the state and community levels.